REGIONALISM

Gaughan continues to press for change

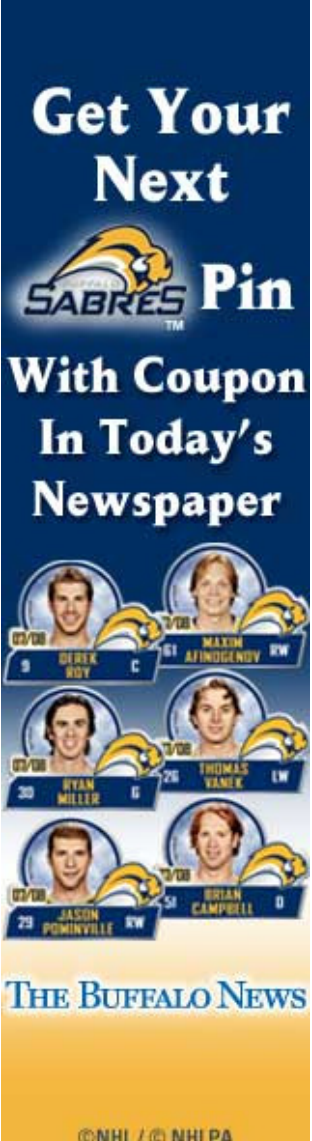

Updated: 03/10/08 6:36 AM

Kevin Gaughan, longtime regionalism advocate, will reach the halfway point this month in his tour of Erie County's 45 local governments to promote reducing the number of elected positions.

At each session, Gaughan presents findings that the county has more elected officials than any other like-size community in the nation.

His appearances before town and village governments are open to the public and take place during their regularly scheduled meetings.

Upcoming sessions include Depew, 7:30 p.m. today Eden, 7:30 p.m. Wednesday; Colden, 7:30 p.m. Thursday; Springville, 7 p.m. next Monday; Town of Hamburg, 7 p.m. March 24; and Evans, 7 p.m. April 2.
