Residents indeed want to have fewer politicians

Updated: 08/11/08 7:11 AM

I find it laughable to hear Amherst Councilman Mark Manna's comments about downsizing the Town Board. He said: "I think what the public wants is fewer bad decisions by its politicians, not fewer politicians." Get it straight: The public wants less of you everywhere. If the most populous town in the county downsizes, the rest of those small towns and villages should do the same. What Manna does not realize is that the public's opinion of politicians is a notch below "championship wrestling."
